Google Analytics & Use of Cookies

First Suffield Bank|A DIVISION OF PeoplesBank uses Google Analytics which tracks your activity while on our website. When you use our website, we may send one or more cookies to your computer. These are small text files with a string of alphanumeric characters sent from the website and stored on your device. Cookies are used to: store information about users' preferences, location and other details; to protect users' data from unauthorized access; to main certain website functionality; and to collect Google Analytics data and other tracking data. Cookies are used to collect some data that your web browser automatically sends to Google. This may include the web address of the page you're visiting and your IP address. Google explains how cookies work, as well as the types of cookies used by Google. You may stop or restrict the placement of cookies on your computer or flush them from your browser by adjusting your web browser preferences

Our site uses both first-party cookies and third-party cookies. First-party cookies are issued by the website being visited and only the website which issues the first-party cookie can read them. Third-party cookies are issued by website(s) other than the website being visited. Both types can be set with or without an expiration date. Cookies set without expiration dates are known as temporary cookies, and these expire as soon as you end the web session or close the browser window. Cookies set with an expiration date are persistent cookies. These cookies expire only on the expiration date and can remain on your computer even when you have ended the web session or closed your browser window.
